NEW TROOPS TO GO TO NEWPORT

Two More Companies Will Be Sent To Scene Of Mill Strike.

Newport, Ky., Dec. 27.—Two more companies of Kentucky National Guards are to be ordered to Newport for duty, in connection with the strike at the Newport Rolling Mills, Cal. H. H. Denhardt, commanding the troops here, announced late today, following a long-distance telephone conference with Gov. Edwin P. Morrow at Frankfort.

Colonel Deuhart, in making the announcement, quoted Governor Morrow as being "greatly surprised at the lawless condition that exists in Newport," and as saying that he intended to exhaust all of the resources of the state of Kentucky, if necessary, "to put an end to the reign of terror that exists."

Colonel Deuhart said:
"Governor Morrow feels very much wrought up over the incidents of Monday in connection with the strike, the attack on defenseless women who were coming from the mills on a peaceful mission that ended in the wounding of Capt. Roy Pasler; and the cowardly assault on William Tuttle, pipe-fitting foreman at the Andrews Steel Plant more than two squares away from the rolling mill."

"The State of Kentucky is prepared to take over the policing of the entire county if it is found necessary in order to bring about the right condition of government," Colonel Deuhart declared.

"The governor directed me to make his position clear to the people of Newport. He is chagrined to learn that local government has broken down until it has ceased to function. He intends to enforce respect for law and order in Newport if it requires the entire military force of the state to accomplish this result."

"Gunmen racing about the city of Newport in high-powered cars shooting up the city are going to learn that they are out of commission and repetitions of the outrages of Monday will not be permitted."

"Soldiers of the state of Kentucky will be sent to Newport and every street will be patrolled if it is found necessary. Martial law may be declared at any time now, for things and outlaws are not going to be permitted to operate."

IRISH SENTIMENT IN FAVOR OF PACT

De Valera May Cancel Op- position Is Rumor In London.

London, Dec. 27.—Sentiment throughout Ireland, as reflected in dispatches to London newspapers today, is overwhelmingly in favor of the Irish peace treaty. Reports from various provinces indicate that fully 90 per cent of the people in the twenty-six counties of Southern Ireland want the pact ratified.

This confirms predictions made when the Dail Eireann adjourned its debate on the treaty last Thursday until January 3 that the recess would bring definite expression of the people's will, and the view is now put forward that when the Dail reassembles the treaty will be approved by a majority which will make an appeal to the country unnecessary.

The Morning Post's correspondent says a rumor is afoot of a "possibility" again, this being taken to mean that Eamon de Valera intends to announce "sensational" before the Dail meets withdrawal of his opposition in view of the weight of opinion for the treaty.

The Times sent a special correspondent to County Clare, the Council of which appealed to Mr. de Valera to abandon his opposition. According to the correspondent, the Council's action is endorsed with pride by a vast majority of the people. Clare is known as "the banner county" from its having been the traditional home of Irish political movements, among them Daniel O'Connell's emancipation campaign and Charles Stewart Parnell's land league struggle, and its people regard the Council as having lived up to traditions.

The reporter discussed the question with all ranks and classes of people from the highest ecclesiastics to the lowest menials and says that, while he heard nothing in disparagement of Mr. de Valera, he was assured that from 70 to 80 per cent of the country favors the treaty. The minority he believed to be mostly members of the Irish Republican army.

The Dublin correspondent of the Times cites as evidence of the public support of the treaty the fact that a long letter from Erskine Childers, published in the newspapers Saturday, explaining and supporting the alternative oath of allegiance ascribed to Mr. de Valera, attracted little interest. Moreover, it was regarded as a breach of the agreement made before the Dail rising that none of the members would issue controversial statements during the recess and was interpreted as an indication that de Valera's party is increasingly in fear of defeat.

MOVIES COME AT A BILLION A YEAR

Public Pays Enormous Sum For Its Screen En- tertainment.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The American people spend from seven hundred and fifty million dollars to one billion dollars a year to see motion pictures, the Senate Finance Committee was told today in the course of arguments for and against a high tariff on foreign-made pictures. The investment in the industry totals about $250,000,000 and employment is given to about 250,000 persons.

Paul M. Turner, of New York, speaking for the Actors' Equity Association, testified that the idea that everybody connected with the industry made "big money" was erroneous; that 96 per cent of those engaged in making films received only "a living wage."

Mr. Turner and John Emerson, an independent producer of New York, speaking for himself and for D. W. Griffith, urged a duty on imported films of from 50 to 60 per cent and valorem in place of the 30 per cent in the Fordney bill. They said the industry was in bad shape with many studios and a large number of the 18,000 motion picture theaters over the country closed.

Declaring that only a high tariff stood between the industry and extermination, Mr. Turner declared that at this time fifty-four German-made pictures were being exhibited in this country and that four or five of these had yielded the exhibitors $2,500,000. American producers can not compete with the Germans, he said, adding that pictures which cost from $200,000 to $300,000 to produce in this country could be made in Germany for from $10,000 to $12,000.

Saul F. Rogers of New York, speaking for the National Association of Motion Picture Industry opposed the duty in the Fordney bill, urging that the present rate of three cents a foot be retained. He declared that only a few foreign films and those depicting great spectacles had been successful in this country. American producers, he testified, export films of many of their productions. He feared that a higher duty than that now proposed would bring retaliatory legislation and damage the industry here.

An attack on the Eastman Kodak Company featured the hearings. Mr. Rogers, William A. de Ford, of New York, counsel for the International Film Service Company, Inc., Frederick R. Coudert, of New York, counsel for Pathe Exchange, Inc., and other witnesses charged that this company, thru a monopoly of the "raw" film product, would be able to control the motion picture industry if imports were shut out. They consequently opposed the 20 per cent ad valorem duty on "raw" films proposed in the Fordney bill.

Mr. de Ford asked the committee to investigate an agreement which he said he believed the Eastman Company had made with representatives of the Film Laboratories. He charged, that, after the laboratories had opposed the proposed duty on the imported films, the Eastman Company bought several laboratories as a "club" to keep the others in line. Threatened with an invasion of their field, the witness said the representatives of the laboratories entered into a written agreement among themselves on last September 9 to use only American-made films.

TELEPHONE OPERATORS

The average telephone operator certainly has our sympathy. They are called-up and called-down. They get the latter call too frequently and at times, upon the least provocation. The girl at the switch board is blamed for most everything, from bad connection, due to worn attachments, weak batteries and a half-dozen other parties hanging on the line you may be trying to use. Not all operators, always display a salutary and angelic temper, if they did we certainly would suggest that they be closely watched, because something would most certainly be radically wrong with them. They have too much to contend with, their provocations are by far, greater and more frequent than those of the would-be talker, who is not infrequently a mere sponge, a parasite upon the line.

We had occasion to use almost every telephone exchange within Ohio County during the present week, some of them many times during one day, and we wish to say that each and every operator did his and her best, seemingly, to assist us toward getting good service. The Operators at the local Board and Centertown were extremely nice to us. Our calls were difficult and hard to get. The Operators at these two points found out why we were calling so often and very materially aided us. Without their giving us more attention and assistance than they are usually given credit for, it would have been impossible for us to have secured the information we sought. It was important to us, and in sincerity, we thank them for doing more than their part. Nothing can be too good for a pains-taking and much nagged-at operator of the average switch board. Here's a special wish that the best of the better things may be yours during the times just ahead.

BIG FIGHT ON IN KU KLUX KLAN

170 Members Sign Petition For Receiver In Atlanta Court; Funds Tied-Up.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 23.—Receivership of all property, funds, documents and records of the Ku Klux Klan is sought in a petition filed today in the Fulton Superior Court by 170 persons describing themselves as "honest and law-abiding" members of the Klan. The petitioners are headed by Harry B. Terrell, Lloyd B. Hooper, F. W. Atkin and A. J. Padon, Jr., deposed grand goblins.

Upon filing of the petition Judge John T. Pendleton granted a temporary injunction against the Klan, restraining the organization from disposing of any of its property and from disbursing any moneys except for ordinary expenses, which it stipulated, must not include salaries of officers and employees.

The petition further seeks the removal of Edward Young Clarke, Imperial Kluge of the Klan, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, head of the propagation department, both of whom are made co-defendants to the suit.

An additional feature of the restraining order is that the defendant corporation and the two officers named are prohibited from banishing, suspending, expelling or prosecuting the Klan members whose names appear on the petition as plaintiffs.

William J. Simmons, Imperial wizard of the Klan, was informally notified of the signing of the court order today. Accompanied by several of the deposed grand goblins, W. H. Terrell, attorney for the plaintiffs, visited "Klaukrest," the home of the Imperial wizard. Mr. Simmons greeted the party affably and smiled when informed that the restraining order had been granted. Formal service of the court order was to be made later in the day.

January 23 was set as the date for a hearing to determine whether the temporary injunction shall be made permanent, and whether the receivership for the Klan shall be granted.

INGERSOLL HELD $1,000,000 SHORT

Bankruptcy Petition Against Watch Concern Lists $3,- 000,000 Liabilities.

New York, Dec. 27.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today against Robert H. Ingersoll & Brother, manufacturers of Ingersoll watches, of this city. Liabilities were set forth as $3,000,000 and assets, exclusive of good will, as $2,000,000.

The concern admitted its inability to pay its debts and expressed willingness to be adjudged bankrupt. The proceedings were brought by the National City Bank of New York, Chase National Bank of New York and Hathaway, Smith, Folsch & Company, with combined claims of $450,000.

Edward H. Childs was appointed receiver under bond of $25,000.

The company has plants in Trenton, N. J., Waterbury, Conn., and Chicago.

The petition for receiver, which set forth that the concern had agencies all over the United States and controlled the Ingersoll Watch Company, Ltd., of London, asserted that a committee of creditors appointed last May had been supervising the business.

The petition asserted also that claims totalling $2,320,469 had been deposited with this committee and that a plan for reorganization of the company would be submitted to the creditors.

Robert H. Ingersoll was the originator of the dollar watch. Recent reports showed that since the manufacture of the famous cheap time-piece known as the Waterbury watch down to the present time almost 100,000,000 had been sold.

Since its manufacture was started, however, the price of the dollar watch increased materially.

No reasons were ascribed for the company's financial difficulties.

Howard C. Smith, chairman of the creditors' committee, issued the following statement:

The creditors' committee has applied for this bankruptcy for the protection of creditors and with view to reorganization.

BRITISH KING IS POOR MAN

Forced To Sell Private Properties To Meet Household Costs.

London, Dec. 24.—King George V. is a poor man and suffers more from the severe economic conditions now prevailing than is generally realized. Most of the king's income comes from crown lands and grants made from the privy purse, in all about $250,000 a year. Before the war, despite the heavy demands on the royal purse, this income more than sufficed; in fact, Queen Victoria, notorious now for her parsimony, saved a fortune out of it and died leaving close on a million sterling. Since the war, however, the costs attached to the royal household have quadrupled, and the income from the crown lands has been halved. The king can not let any of his estate to American millionaires as hunting boxes; he must live in them and thus provide employment for the few thousands of retainers.

A rich man desirous of cutting expenses fires a few retainers and slaves on the board and wages. Not so the royal servants. For generations their families have served the rulers of Great Britain, and their children in generations to come will be expected to serve similarly, therefore any act depriving them of that inheritance is a thing unheard of. Royal servants are born, not made.

Holyrood Palace, in Scotland; Windsor Castle, Sandringham and Buckingham Palace are all establishments which carry a retinue of servants and cost far more than the collective palaces of any millionaire. Yet none of these can be disposed of.

Then there are the costs of the members of his own family. The prince of Wales is provided for, also the duke of York and Princess Mary. The duke gets $40,000 a year, but half of that goes in income tax, from which, unlike the king and the prince of Wales, he has no exemption. So the royal dad has to loosen a bit to his second son now and again. The other two sons, Henry and George, have practically to rub along on their own army and navy pay, respectively, helped along, no doubt, by a frequent remittance from the queen.

The next big assault on the royal bankroll will be Princess Mary's dowry. Happily, she is marrying a very rich man, and the "dot" will therefore be considerably smaller than would have been the case had she selected some young Continental princeling as a spouse. Nevertheless, the fortunate young bridegroom will not have a penniless bride, but one richly endowed and well jeweled; all this, of course, means more inroads into the king's already sadly overtaxed banking account.

Undoubtedly the king's expenses exceed his income. Last year there was a big deficit, and the royal household was seriously exercised. Unlike the kings of Great Britain, in the past, who in such circumstances unblushingly went to parliament for an extra grant from the treasury, King George realized that the assailable qualities of his subjects were strained to the very utmost and decided to make ends meet by rigid household economies.

The few private estates owned by the king which have been bequeathed to him from purely private sources have all been disposed of privately; the last of all, his estate in the Isle of Wight, is now in the hands of a real estate agent for sale by private treaty and has been for two months, but up to now there has been no offer.

Should He Be Quarantined?

Many physicians believe that anyone who has a bad cold should be completely isolated to prevent other members of the family and associates from contracting the disease, as colds are about as catching as measles. One thing sure—the sooner one rid himself of a cold the less the danger, and you will look a good while before you find a better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to aid you in curing a cold.

'UNCLE JOE' SORRY WHEN TELEPHONE 'GOT' VAIL

When, at the age of thirty-three, Theodore N. Vail left the Railway Mail Service to become manager of the new Bell Telephone Company, his Washington friends stood aghast, among them "Uncle Joe" Cannon, according to Albert Bigelow Paine in his new book "In One Man's Life."

"Vail resigned his place," he exclaimed when told about his young friend's decision. "What for?"

"Why he is going into that thing invented by Bell—the telephone that talks over a wire. He has invested make it his business."

"Well," said Cannon, "that's too bad. I always liked Vail. Hubbard tried to sell me some of that stock. I'm sorry he got hold of a nice fellow like Vail."

Later developments proved that, for once in his long and picturesque career "Uncle Joe" had guessed wrong.

RAPS ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE AND KLAN

Strikers Also Attacked By Columbus Minister For Taking Law Into Own Hands.

Columbus, O., Dec. 24.—"The fundamental secret of democracy is that no one is above the law," declared the Rev. Charles A. Alden, pastor of the First Universalist Church here, recently in a sermon marked by an attack upon the Anti-Saloon League and the assailing of the Ku Klux Klan, striking miners and other organizations for trying to "take the law into their own hands."

"The quotation: 'All men are created equal,' means that no man is allowed to take the law into his own hands," continued the Rev. Dr. Alden.

"Even the Anti-Saloon League has no such authority," he asserted, commending the Supreme Court for refusing to recognize the right of officers to unwarranted searching of homes in the attempt to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States constitution.

"It is idle to talk of enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment by breaking the fourth amendment. If the Eighteenth Amendment can not be enforced without breaking personal and property rights already guaranteed, then there is conflict between the amendment and the constitution."

"As it stood the Supreme Court declined to recognize it. Most of us are glad of this decision. It is unwise leadership that reopens the debate."

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XL.—MONTANA

tion of Montana history immediately brings to mind the Custer massacre as one of the most dramatic incidents in Indian warfare. It occurred in 1876, the Centennial year, when special emphasis was being laid on the cause of peace throughout the world. The Sioux Indians had been driven into Montana by the gold miners, and the United States government took steps to force them back into their reservations. General Custer, with less than 300 men, set out to round up the tribes which were on the warpath, and at the Little Bighorn river, was ambushed by Sitting Bull and 3,000 warriors. Custer and all his troops were killed. Soon after this massacre the Indians were defeated and many of them fled to Canada.

Gold was discovered in Montana as early as 1852 by the half-breed Francois Plémy near Hell Gate river. This, however, created little stir and it wasn't until five years later when John Silverthorn discovered gold in quantities, that mining settlements sprang up in the mountains. This region had been part of Nebraska territory, which in 1863 was subdivided and became a portion of Idaho territory. The next year it was organized as the separate Territory of Montana.

Virginia City was the capital and here in 1863 was issued the Montana Post, the first newspaper of the state. In 1874 the capital was changed to Helena and ten years later a state constitution was adopted. The state was not taken into the Union, however, until 1889.

Montana comes from the Spanish adjective meaning "mountainous." Its area is 146,990 square miles, making it the third largest state of the Union.

BIG MAJORITY

Females Of White Race Now Outnumber Men By Eleven Millions.

London, Dec. 24.—There are approximately 11,000,000 more females of the white race than males today, as compared with an excess of 4,000,000 before the war, according to statistics just made public here. The 4,000,000 excess was swollen by the war to nearly three times its former dimensions, and the greatest proportional increase was in women between the ages of 20 and 60 years.

In another twenty years or so this excess should practically disappear by the action of natural sex increase if no disturbing factor should occur.

The problem then will not be the want of balance of the sexes, but the pressure of population in the Old World, where, unless emigration takes on a more even sex flow, there will still be an excess of females, while in the New World the opposite condition will still prevail.

Ten years ago the only parts of Europe in which males were in a majority were the Balkan States, Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania, Serbia, (and Bosnia-Herzegovina) and Luxemburg.

Russia and Great Britain. Every other country showed a greater or lesser excess of females. Numerically it was greatest in Russia and in Great Britain, proportionately in Portugal and Norway.

Ireland, Germany, Finland, Sweden and Switzerland all showed a persistent decline in the ratio of female excess.

In Austria-Hungary and the Netherlands a sharp rise from 1880 to 1890 was followed by a fall to 1910 while in Scotland a marked fall in the period 1881-1891 was followed by a less marked rise to 1911.

England and Wales, Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Norway, Portugal and Spain all showed however, a persistent rise in the proportion of females in the population.

Disproportionate Increase.

Practically all the countries which had an excess in 1911 will show an increase of that excess in 1921, and in many cases, notably Germany, France, Austria-Hungary and Belgium, this increase will be in consequence of the war, an entirely disproportionate one. Italy may not be so much affected as would otherwise be the case, as so many Italians returned from America to enroll, but even then the increase will presumably be a very large one.

Further, it is probable that the excess of males in the Balkan States will have completely disappeared.

Altogether the figures show an excess of females among the white races of some 11,000,000 at the present time and make it clear that the emigration of women can not bring about a balance of the sexes so far as those races are concerned.

It is true that in Europe a large proportion of the excess of women was, as has been shown, at ages over 60 and that in America the preponderance of males obtains through life.

But the proportion in Europe has materially fallen thru the war, and it is doubtful whether of the estimated 5,000,000 excess males in America more than four and one-half millions are between the ages of 20 and 60, as an offset against the 13,000,000 excess women at those ages in Europe.

Nature, we are told, will right the balance in time, but this, even if true, does not help to solve the present problem. And it is worth while asking: Is it true?

GIANT CABLE SPANS RIVER AT DETROIT

A new telephone cable across the Detroit River, connecting that city with Windsor, Ont., recently put in operation, is said to be the largest in the world. It contains 408 pairs of wires, is three and five-eighths inches in diameter, 3,000 feet long and weighs 50,870 pounds.

The use of this cable will permit direct trunk line connection between sixteen central offices. It will also carry 600 conversations simultaneously.

The laying of the cable is in anticipation of Detroit's telephone needs up to 2,000,000 population.

ONE BRAND- ONE QUALITY- One Size Package

All our skill, facilities, and lifelong knowledge of the finest tobaccos are concentrated on this one cigarette—CAMEL.

Into this ONE BRAND, we put the utmost quality. Nothing is too good for Camels. They are as good as it's possible to make a cigarette.

Camel QUALITY is always maintained at the same high, exclusive standard. You can always depend on the same mellow-mild refreshing smoothness—the taste and rich flavor of choicest tobaccos—and entire freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

And remember this! Camels come in one size package only—20 cigarettes—just the right size to make the greatest saving in production and packing. This saving goes straight into Camel Quality. That's one reason why you can get Camel Quality at so moderate a price.

Here's another. We put no useless frills on the Camel package. No "extra wrappers!" Nothing just for show!

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And their added cost must go onto the price or come out of the quality.

One thing, and only one, is responsible for Camels great and growing popularity—that is CAMEL QUALITY.

DOUBLE POWER IS SEEN IN RUSSIA

Secret Service Is Declared More Powerful Than Central Government.

Moscow, Dec. 24.—Nineteen hundred and twenty-one has been a year of diplomatic and economic battling for soviet Russia. It brought the abandonment of the government monopoly of domestic trading and gradual reversion to capitalistic methods, tempered in such a way as to prevent dangerous splits in the small Communist group which dominates the government. But the trade for 1921 has been many times what it was in 1920, and the reopening of shops on the old capitalistic basis has afforded an opportunity to sell in a legal way manufactured articles which are in great demand.

Hampered by the triple desire to establish trade relations with important foreign powers, to protect the Third Internationale, whose headquarters are in Russia, and to hold the Communist party in Russia intact, Lenin and his associates were in a precarious situation even before the drought produced widespread famine in the Volga area.

Country Is Bare.

Krassine managed to negotiate trade agreements with England, Germany and several minor powers, but the foreign trade commissions which came to Russia failed to find the large supplies which Bolshevik leaders had heralded through the world. The concession plan which Krassine and his associates had devised did not appeal to foreign investors. Confidence was lacking. Old owners had no desire to invest more money in factories which had been taken away from them and other foreigners could not be induced to take factories whose title was clouded.

The Bolshevik government lacked the gold necessary to buy bread and could not find creditors. The government announced it would make import and export business possible for individuals and corporations, under government control. This belated statement came in October. Commissions are working out customs tariffs, and 1922 probably will see a far larger export and import trade if the government makes good its promise to release its grip on foreign business.

Check Powerful.

Lesli Uerquhart, a British mining man, who attempted to obtain concessions to work the mining properties which he controlled in Russia before the Bolshevik regime, said it would be impossible for him to operate in Russia until the government stops the activities of the Cheka, or secret service, which he insists is stronger than the central government, with which concessions are negotiated.

The Cheka always has had an important part in directing foreign trade arrangements. Many commissioners selected by the Foreign Trade Council have not been permitted to leave Russia. Foreigners are unable to understand the relations between the Cheka, which operates under Umslicht, and the so-called central government. It is not clear whether there is a dual government, or whether the men who are generally recognized as heads of the government use the Cheka and thus avoid direct blame for acts which meet with public disapproval.

Official figures for the foreign trade of Russia during the first nine months of this year show that the exports totaled roughly 100,000 tons. These exports were chiefly raw materials or partly manufactured articles, such as timber, railway ties, leather, fur, tar, bristles, hair, asbestos and graphite. Thirty-three per cent of the exports went to England. Forty-six per cent, chiefly wood and ax, went to Latvia for exportation to various countries. The value of goods exported from abroad from January 1 until August 31 was about $1,400,000.

WOLF IS KILLED ON LOS ANGELES STREETS

Los Angeles, Dec. 24.—A big game hunt within the city limits of Los Angeles was revealed when Albert Barral made application to the county game warden for a bounty on a wild wolf he shot and killed while the animal was prowling in the vicinity of the new Los Angeles High School building. The wolf measured four and a half feet from the tip of its nose to the end of its tail and weighed approximately 160 pounds.

The disappearance of chickens, dogs and other small animals from homes in the vicinity led to the pursuit and killing of the wolf.

SACCO DENIED ANOTHER TRIAL

Companion Given Similar Decision, Get Death Sentence

Dedham, Mass., Dec. 24.—Motions for a new trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti on grounds of insufficient evidence and on technicalities of law were denied today by Judge Wester Thayer. The court announced the ruling at a hearing on a supplementary motion for a new trial based on alleged improprieties in the jury room.

Judge Thayer went into a lengthy rehearsal of the circumstances of the crime, the killing of a paymaster and his guard for which the men were found guilty of murder in the first degree. He said no jury had ever been selected with greater care and that it had been carefully safeguarded from all outside influences. He declared the function of the court was to preside at the trial, to rule on the admissibility of evidence and to charge the jury, declaring that instances on which a judge was justified in disturbing a jury verdict were rare.

Taking up the questions of identification of Sacco and Vanzetti, of whether the bullet in the body of Alessandro Bernardo, the paymaster's guard, was fired from the pistol of Sacco, of the identification of the touring car in which the pay-roll bandits escaped, and several other questions, the court said these were matters of evidence on which the jury alone was capable of passing.

On the question of consciousness of guilt, the court said such considerations were always admissible.

In this connection, he said, the defense had contended that Sacco and Vanzetti, being radicals, were afraid of deportation and that their conduct was traceable to this fact.

"Were the defendants consciously guilty of the murder of the paymaster and his guard, or were they afraid of being deported," he said. "That was a matter of evidence for the jury alone to decide."

GAS WAR IS ON WAY; PREPARE!

Don't Cease Manufacture Of Poison Fumes, British Expert Warns.

London, Dec. 24.—Instead of dismantling their war chemical plants, the world powers should develop to the greatest extent their ability to produce dyestuffs and poison gas.

If they do not they face extermination in the gas clouds of another great war in which poison gas will be the most important medium of offense.

That's the belief of Maj. Victor Lefebure, expressed in a book he has just brought out.

Lefebure is England's greatest authority on chemical warfare. He served with a gas unit on the British front in France. Later he was British chemical warfare liaison officer.

His statement is directly opposed to the recommendation of the American advisory committee at the Washington conference that the manufacture of poison gas be prohibited. "National safety demands strong organic chemical industries," Lefebure says.

Can't Be Prohibited.

"No convention, guarantee or disarmament safeguard will prevent an unscrupulous enemy from using poison gas."

"Especially if that enemy has discovered some new powerful agent or possesses a ready means of producing such chemicals at a moment's notice."

"Our chemical industry should be developed so that when an emergency develops we shall have the necessary facilities for supply at hand."

Lefebure points to gas as the logical offensive medium of future wars. Gas almost had superceded artillery by the close of the World War, Lefebure says. In 1918 German guns were firing 50 per cent gas and 50 per cent high explosives.

The disarmament of Germany has been a joke, the British expert declares. Germany has been deprived only of her small arms and artillery—her gas facilities remain.

German gas during the World War was supplied by the Interessengemeinschaft, a vast combine of chemical factories.

Since the war that combine still exists and its ability to produce gas is as great as it was in the past. The factories themselves are flourishing on peace time dye trade.

Splendid Cough Medicine

"As I feel that every family should know what a splendid medicine Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is, I am only too pleased to relate my experience and only wish that I had known of its merits years ago," writes Mrs. Clay Fry, Ferguson Station, Mo. "I give it to my children when they show the slightest symptoms of being croupy, and when I have a cough or cold on the lungs a very few doses will relieve me, and by taking it for a few days I soon get rid of the cold."

GERMS PASS THROUGH CISTERN FILTERS

Cistern water that is used for drinking should be gathered with great care. Properly constructed cisterns that receive rain water from roofs generally afford good drinking water, but water of doubtful quality that is stored in cisterns is of course not safe for domestic use. According to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, most of the filters that are used in connection with cisterns do not remove the germs of disease, though they may make the water clear, and apparently safe. Many cisterns are divided into two compartments by a brick wall, the water being admitted into one compartment and pumped or drawn from the other after it has passed through the wall. The passage of the water through the brick improves it in clearness and color but not generally in sanitary quality.

THE GREATEST RIVERS

In the development of a new country the early settlers invariably follow the rivers from the coast. The inland waterways are of the highest importance to the welfare of a country, for they aid in the development of unsettled areas and materially reduce the expense for transportation of the necessities of life. Even tho a stream may not be navigable for any craft larger than a canoe, it may serve as a guiding line to the first explorer.

There are comparatively few rivers whose exact lengths are known.

but the following list of lengths of the principal rivers of the world has been compiled by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, from various sources and is probably as nearly accurate as any other to be had. The United States has the distinction of containing within its borders the longest river system in the world—the Mississippi-Missouri. Distances given in even hundreds of miles are approximate:

BRITAIN ORDERS
SHIPS TO EGYPT

Nationalist Leader Refuses To Leave
Cairo, Riots Follow.

Manila, Dec. 23.—Two British warships have received orders to proceed to Egypt immediately. Other units of the British Mediterranean fleet are under orders to leave at the shortest notice.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 23.—Crisis bristled with police and troops tonight, and airplanes circled over the delta of the Nile, following disturbances in connection with the forcible removal to Suez early today of Said Zagloul Pasha, a nationalist leader, by the authorities. His removal came as a result of his refusal to obey an order issued by the military authorities that he and his chief followers cease all political activity and leave Cairo.

Altho much wanton destruction occurred during the disturbance, the authorities claim that the incident is relatively unimportant and that the situation need not be regarded with particular anxiety. The disturbances appear to have been confined to Cairo and reports tonight were that everything was quiet in the neighboring provinces.

Six of Zagloul's supporters were arrested on the charge of refusing to obey the same order to return to their home villages. Two demonstrators were killed during the disturbances by rifle shots.

AT 146 MAN STARTS
OUT TO SEE WORLD

Paris, Dec. 6.—A modern Methusalem, reputed to be the oldest man on earth, has started out to see the world before he gets "too old to travel."

Zora Mehmed, 146 years old, of Constantinople, has arrived in Paris. Zora, who has been working pretty consistently for 140 years, is in excellent health and boasts of being able to carry a 200-pound weight.

Zora produced identification papers to prove he was born in 1775, and he refers to his closest competitor for longevity honors, a Sioux Indian in the United States, aged 137 years, as a "mere boy."

Zora has a son 95 years old and he has so many descendants that he long ago lost count.

The aged Turk is a skeptic on the subject of matrimony. Having tried the experience four times, he says he speaks with a certain amount of authority.

"Women," said Zora, shaking his head bitterly, "women, they may seem as sweet as the rosy dawn but verily they are more often like thorns, hidden only by a rosy exterior."

GERMAN HUNTING RIFLES
CONFISCATED BY ALLIES

Berlin, Dec. 23.—Nine thousand hunting rifles, valued at 7,000,000 marks said to have been purchased by an American, were confiscated at Munich by the Entente disarmament commission on the arrival of the rifles from Holland today. The rifles were shipped from Holland, altho the sale was not consummated. It is stated that the American, whose name has not been given, intends to demand the property thru the American consular authorities.

KANSAS FARMERS ENGAGE IN OLD-TIME WOLF HUNT

Parsons, Kan., Dec. 24.—For the first time in twenty-five years farmers of Southeastern Kansas are planning to hold an old-fashioned wolf hunt.

A mobilization call for Christmas Day has gone out among the farmers of Labette County, and it is expected that upward of 100 men will take part in the hunt.

For some time past the wolves have been making way with lots of live stock and fowls in this vicinity. The farmers declare that it is high time to call a halt on the depredations of those night marauders. Several farmers have reported that they have seen gray timber wolves stalking around.

Traps have been used extensively to catch the beasts, but without any marked results.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or humming in the ears, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are cured by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surface of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

FATHER SHOOT HAND
OF SON'S SLAYER

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Clyde Timmons, of Hammond, Ind., who with a companion last night kidnapped Mrs. James J. Callahan, wife of the former manager of the White Sox club, and other members of an automobile party, was today partly identified as the masked bandit who last Tuesday night robbed passengers on a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train as it was leaving Chicago.

Timmons' companion, Earl Timmons of Chicago, a cousin, was shot and killed by a policeman after a chase after the Callahan car.

Alfred Timmons, a Chicago veterinary surgeon, at the inquest today identified the dead man as his son. As he stepped from the witness chair after testifying, he walked to the policeman who had shot his son, extended his hand and said: "I never thought I would shake the hand of the man who killed my son," he said, "but if ever a killing was justified this one was. You merely did your duty and, after all, it is better for my boy."

BOLO PACHA IN DIRECTORY
BUT DOES NOT ANSWER CALL

Paris never takes anything short of a world war with absolute seriousness, and even the epochal appearance of a new telephone directory has given the wags of the French capital a cue to poke a little harmless fun at the keepers of telephone archives. The French learned many things from their American associates during the war, but efficiency in compiling telephone directories was apparently not one of them. A veritable army of one-time subscribers, no longer available by telephone, appears in the "revised" edition which has just been distributed.

Some of the "subscribers" are not only beyond reach of the Paris central operators, but cannot be located by any other known means of communication, with the possible exception of the faithful ouija board.

Paris funmakers have been calling up the number which corresponds to the listing "Bolo Pacha, Rue de Phalsbourg," Bolo, it will be remembered was executed as a traitor on April 17, 1918.

After the usual ten-minute interval required to get a telephone connection in Paris, or to find out why it cannot be obtained, request for this number brings a response the truthfulness of which the calling subscriber is never disposed to doubt. "He doesn't answer," the operator solemnly reports.

THIS IS RATHER UPSETTING

A farmer was sawing wood when it occurred to him that he ought to have the help of one or more of his five boys. Lifting up his voice, he called; but not a boy appeared. At dinner, of course, they all appeared; and it was not necessary to call them.

"Where were you all about two hours ago when I wanted you and shouted for you?"

"I was in the shop settin' the saw," said one.

"And I was in the barn settin' a hen," said the second.

"I was in grandma's room settin' the clock," said the third.

"I was in the garret settin' the trap," said the fourth.

"You are a wonderful set," remarked the farmer. "And where were you?" he continued, turning to the youngest.

"I was on the doorstep, settin' still."

"Why do you occupy two seats?" asked the stranger.

"To even things up," answered the grumpy man. "Half the time I don't get any seat at all."—Toledo Blade.

Jim—Nothing, mother.

Mother—My, but you are getting like your father.

The new maid was entirely make-shift, and the mistress bore with her patiently at first, but on the third day she placed a very unclean dinner-plate on the table and patience broke down. "Really, Mary, you might at least see that the plates are clean."

"Well, mum," Mary rejoined, "I owns to them thumb prints, but that dried mustard was there when I come."

NEW-BORN PARTY'S AIM TO OVERTHROW GOVERNMENT

New York, Dec. 24.—With a policeman's billy doing duty as the chairman's gavel, the Workers' Party of America was born here today and dedicated to the overthrow of the present government and the substitution of the "American workers' republic."

Self-styled revolutionary radicals from all parts of the United States attended the organization massmeeting and then opened the party's first national convention.

The 146 delegates announced they would commence being revolutionary by working all day tomorrow—Christmas—and scheduled committee meetings for the morning and for the afternoon, the second session of the convention.

After preliminary organization was effected, James P. Cannon, of Kansas City, wielding the billy as presiding officer, said the party should begin by fighting more and talking less.

Almost immediately several delegates acted upon the suggestion. They were ejected from the convention hall after a verbal and fistie exchange. Mr. Cannon then declared he would listen to "no one who talked anything but unity."

A group of six men at a table in one corner of the hall made all the nominations for committee "on behalf of the American Labor Alliance and the Workers' Council." Of the 146 delegates ninety-four represented the former organization and thirteen the latter. Their states were accepted without discussion.

SLAYER OF TWO MEN
SENTENCED TO DEATH

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Harvey Church, charged with the murder of two automobile salesmen, was found guilty this morning and sentenced to death. Church killed Carl Asmus and Bernard Daugherty, when they delivered a car which he had arranged to buy.

The new maid, under the direction of her mistress, was washing a valuable cut-glass pitcher. Once it slipped out of her hands, but, fortunately, did not smash. The second time it was shattered into bits. "Dear me," exclaimed the owner "and that's twice you dropped it in five minutes."

"I know it, mum," said the maid, "but it didn't break the first time."

PUSSYFOOT SAYS
HE LOVES LIQUOR
Dry Advocate, Qualifies By Citing
Biblical Phrase "Love
Your Enemies."

New York, Dec. 23.—William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson breezed into town today on the Adriatic and took a bucking taxi to the offices of the Anti-Slavery League, where, along toward the dusk hour he acted as host to a flock of dry reporters, recounting snappy stories of India, picked up in his recent four months' tour in behalf of the gospel of suppression of navy blue jim jams and the face on the harroon floor.

During the course a thin-legged reporter with an inquiring mind asked "Pussyfoot" if he liked hooch.

"Sure I like it," said Pussyfoot, smacking his lips, reminiscently. "Why not? I love it. But that in the paper; say that Pussyfoot Johnson says he loves whisky—for does not the Holy Scripture place on us the injunction, 'Love thy enemy'?"

On Wagon For Fifteen Years
"Does loving your enemy consist in trying to put him out of business?" Pussyfoot was asked.

He flared his famous low-cut, evening dress smile, and went on to explain that he "went on the wagon" fifteen years ago.

In the last decade and a half, he says, he hasn't tasted liquor. He says he cannot remember the name of the town where he had his last drink nor whether he took a highball or a whisky straight.

"If you went back to that town and took another drink there today," said the reporter, "you'd never recognize the old stuff."

Prohibition Is Like Poor.
"They tell me the quality is pretty low," said Pussyfoot.

"That's your fault," said the newspaper man.

"I did the best I could," replied he.

"Do you think Prohibition will ever return to the United States?"

"Prohibition," said Pussyfoot in a lachrymose tremulo, "prohibition, like the poor you will always have with you."

"Merry Xmas Pussyfoot," said the reporters as they arose in a body?

"Merry Xmas to you," said Pussyfoot dryly.

Farmers Mutual..... 59

FRIDAY.....DECEMBER 30

At the date and hour of writing
we are still heating Florida and California. When you speak of weather, Too cool for the Ice Man and too warm for the Coal Man.

Senator La Follette says the Railroads are trying to make friends of the farmers. We know how they could make friends of the Newspapers and a lot of other people, that is, by making a long haul on their freight rates in short time. We received a shipment from Brooklyn, N. Y., a few days ago, of stuff absolutely non-breakable and indestructible, except it may be melted by a hot fire, the net weight of which was 250 pounds, and occupying a total space of 16x15x 8 inches, on which we were required to pay a freight charge of $5.28, or slightly better, or rather worse, than

The death of Henry Watterson which occurred at his Florida home Thursday of last week, marks the end of an era. He was a writer who has graced editorial writers who have wielded the pen on a Kentucky Newspaper, perhaps the most noted, with a few exceptions, who has graced editorial chairs within the entire history of this Nation. Other writers there have been, but none with the style of "Marse" Henry. There was no such thing as "No Man's Land" for Mr.
Watterson. He was to be found upon one side or the other. His pen carried a sting. His arguments were strong and frequently vitriolic, but always Wattersonian. One could select them from scores of articles written by others.
In short, his pen, in the field he ranged, was to the calling as "T. N. T." to high explosives. While the Veteran of a thousand battles had retired from the field of newspaperdom, yet the Country, especially Kentucky, sees in the death of Henry Watterson the end of the King of the Old Tribe, and mourns him as such.

With this issue of the Republican the year A. D. 1921 closes. This year, like all that have gone before has had its good spots, its sunshine and its shadows, its seasons of joy and of sorrow, yet, upon the whole we feel that it has been at least up to the average, perhaps it has measured above. The country has been free from pestilence. Strife and discontent have not been as prevalent as predicted during the year preceding and from a National standpoint we feel that we have made progress, although general conditions are not just what we would have them be.
Balances have not been struck—krad-ling to the proper level is quite a long way from completion—but we confidently look forward to the date when the rough peaks will be made more nearly level with low places. When that shall have come to pass, and not until then, will the general going be made easier. This Paper has had a fair share of patronage and support, financial and otherwise, during the year just closing. Like individuals, in most every vocation, it has made errors, could have been better had those responsible for its appearance and the things appearing in its columns worked a bit harder, yet we feel that reasonable and faithful efforts have been made by all connected with it. We thank each individual who has contributed a news item, who has given it business for which there was financial remuneration, for words of encouragement; while the latter does not purchase stock, or pay bills, yet they are prized more highly than everything else. We shall start the new year with a determination to do our best to give the County news and happenings, to make the paper what such a weekly publication ought to be. We need the help of every friend upon our list. We need and desire more enthusiasm. Our supreme desire is to live, and while living do all the good we can all the time for all the people of Ohio County. Again, please accept our thanks for whatever you may have done for the advancement of the interest of the Republican during the past and our sincere wishes that the year 1922 may bring to all a full measure in health, happiness and store.

KENTUCKY OIL RESERVE 94,063,000 BARRELS

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 28.—Kentucky's known reserves of crude petroleum total approximately 94,063,000 barrels, according to estimates prepared by Dr. Willard Kouse Jilison, director of the Kentucky Geological Survey for the Geological Society of America, which opened its annual meeting at Amherst, Mass., today.
The society is endeavoring to ascertain the oil reserves of the United States.

Dr. Jilison in announcing the estimate said that he considered only the known oil pools and attempted no forecast of the finding of other pools.
The known pools in the State at the present rate of production, he said, should run out about 1980.

The production of oil in the State, the estimates show since 1883 when the first records were kept, up to the present time totals 44,355,300 barrels.

Dr. Jilison said that the reaching of the total estimated reserves of the State was a hard task, because of the fact that production is now so near the peak. The largest production ever reached was in 1919 when 9-226,473 barrels were produced, while in 1920 the production dropped, due to a drop in the production of the Big Sinking field to 5,516,027 barrels.
This year however, the production rose to 5,781,000 barrels, due to increases in the production of the Johnson-Mugoffin and Warren County fields. Discovery of a new pool might result in production jumping to a high figure for a year or two, he said, but he expressed the opinion that his estimates would not be far from right if one could review them at the end of the period ending in 1980.

COAL-MINE WAGE MEETING IS OFF

Southern Ohio Operators Have Refused To Confer With Union Officers.

Columbus, O., Dec. 27.—Notice that members of the Southern Ohio Coal Exchange, comprising seventy coal operators and operating companies, will not hold further meetings with officials of the miners' union to negotiate new wage scales and working agreements was served upon John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, after a meeting of the organization here late today.

The word sent Lewis by the Southern Ohio operators was said to have been in answer to a letter sent out by Lewis from Indianapolis on December 16 suggesting a meeting of two operators and two miners from each of the four states in the central competitive field to be held in Pittsburgh next Tuesday to agree upon a time and place for the next conference.

Announcement that "in due time the operators of Southern Ohio will propose a new scale for their employees that will not include the checkoff and which will eliminate the inequalities placed upon this district," was regarded in many quarters as indicating a possibly serious breach in relations between operators and miners.

A letter sent to Lewis telling of the decision to discontinue meetings with the miners' representatives declared that "the plan of scale-fixing employed in the past has seriously contributed to the existing state of extreme poverty and business depression throughout the mining districts of Southern Ohio."

"To reach our natural markets, to serve the public efficiently and economically, and to relieve conditions which are destroying mining communities, the mining industry and the earning power of the mines," the letter concluded, "the operators of Southern Ohio feel that it is incumbent upon them to notify you now that they can not meet with you as heretofore."

Gordon Savage, secretary of the Ohio Miners' Association, tonight said his organization had nothing to say regarding the operators' action.

Refusal of the Southern Ohio Coal Operators to hold further wage conferences with the miners' union, W.
D. McKinney, secretary of the Southern Ohio Coal Exchange, said tonight, is not a blow aimed at unionized labor. The action is merely withdrawal from the "four state agreement," under which coal operators of Western Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio have been negotiating wage scales. Ohio operators are bound by the agreement until April 1, McKinney said, and are forced to withdraw and deal independently with their men because of economic conditions.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fluko McFluko.)

The biggest thing in most restaurant's soup is profit and about the biggest thing we've ever seen in shoes is Walk Kahn's feet.

Our idea of a fellow with unflintering, simple and trusting faith in the return of the "good old times" is a gay who still retains the cartels and bottle opener, accompanied through the span of a couple of three decades.

It is said that the South Sea Island women sit down to dance and merely wave their arms. Who is it among the 20th century young bloods around Hartford that would care to have a set-to with one of those belles in that manner?

We passed through Christmas just like the Israelites did the river Jordan—
as dry as a chip.

We note that the price of Cadillac automobiles has been sliced all the way from $640 to $640. They will have to shove a lot more inducement to us before we can drive a Cadillac of our own.

Bill Himel, manager of the light plant, says as how if they have a dances, or basket ball game in town, or some sort of a lodge meeting he gits about, well say anywhere from 10 to 25 calls, by interested people wanting to know if the lights will be on tonight, but narry a call does he git on prayer-meeting or preaching nights.

Our friend, Elijah Thomas, says a good many folks in this burg have been telling him that there was something in this column last week about him, but he says he has read her through from end to end, some three or four times and so far has not been able to see his name anywhere therein.

bama, spent the holidays here and at ers in the Taffy Division of the Telephone Co., Mr. Clifton Hoover, of the Barnett's Creek neighborhood, was appointed one of the directors.

tained the younger set, at their

SAYS ROADS TRY TO WIN FARMERS

LaFollette Alleges Great Special Interests Are In Move To Stop Agitation.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, in a formal statement issued today charged that high railroad officials and representatives of the coal, steel and lumber interests at a secret meeting held in Washington December 9, attempted to "chide" front representatives of farmers' organizations an agreement to cease agitation for repeal of the section of the transportation act relating to railroad valuation and for restoration of State control over State rates.

Advising the farmers of the country to leave of the leadership in any of the great farm organizations represented in Washington that would shakele them in combination with railroad executives and with the great corporations and trusts of the country, the Wisconsin Senator further charged that the "great special interests" at the December 9 meeting were successful in obtaining the consent of certain of the farm representatives to the agreement.

Decried By Farm Federation Chicago, Dec. 27.—"We have never entered into an agreement with the railroads to cease agitating anything"
the American Farm Bureau Federation said today in reply to the statement issued by Senator Robert M.
La Follette at Washington. "We are committed to repeal of Section 15A of the railroad act and will continue to work for it, and we likewise are committed to restoration of some of the powers of State ratemaking commissions."

There was never any secret about the Washington conference of December 9, the Farm Bureau Federation said. The meeting was one of a series held to discuss lower freight rates on farm products.

THRILLS

By MRS. MARY POWER.

1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Avis turned the leaves of the brilliantly illustrated booklets listlessly. The scenic glory of the mountains lured her, so did the sanded beaches. But the prices—exorbitant. One must needs be a millionaire to put up at either place.

Anyway she would need a stunning new wardrobe—she would go shopping. She bowed coldly to the little woman lodger she had passed on the stairs. Miss Miller, with a shy, timid smile, wished pathetically she was as young and pretty as the other, as she turned to watch Avis tripping lightly over the dingy stairs. Miss Miller couldn't have been a day over thirty-five, although she looked fifty. Avis herself was just turning thirty.

Dusk had settled when Avis returned, her arms full of bundles. Unlike most women, her shopping expedition had held her for no thrills. There came a thud knock at the door, the handle turned, and Miss Miller entered shyly.

"Oh, Miss Hurrells. I want you to read this letter from my sister Delle. Here's a letter for you, too, came in my mail by mistake. Delle's going to be a June bride," she gasped. "I'm all a-tremble. I suppose it sounds silly that I should feel so queerly, only Delle's the only sister I ever had and the baby of the family." She looked up suddenly, her face aglow, her tired eyes sparkling.

Avis listened politely. Miss Miller was such a bore. What did she care about—June brides—

"I haven't seen Delle since she was a baby. My mother died and we were separated. I've kept track of her though. She wants I should come and see her married," Miss Miller's voice shook a trifle. "Oh, Miss Avis—"

Avis looked surprised. Sentiment in that shrill little soul—of all things! "Well, and why not?" she said.

"Oh, my dear, it's out of the question," Miss Miller said in a shocked voice. "It'd cost heaps—she lives out Kansas way, and I couldn't ever get enough money. I could write and ask Delle to send me the account in the newspapers," her voice broke suddenly.

Avis felt a funny little tug inside of her.

"Miss Miller," she found herself saying, and experienced a thrill of happiness that almost took her breath away, "suppose someone should offer you—enough money—to take you there and back, and furnish you with the necessary trills, and even a beautiful present for Delle—"

"Oh, my gracious," Miss Miller flopped into a chair with a nervous little laugh. "I suppose it does seem like a joke, but Delle you see was a baby, and—"

"Is Mr. Rand here?" asked the brunette sweetly.

The disgruntled one moved a languid hand toward the inner office, the door of which was slightly ajar. After a hesitant moment the newcomer entered herself.

Then Rand hurried out from the inner office and walked straight to Kath, without once glancing at the newcomer. "Ahem!" He drew another desk chair, as close as possible to the one which held the sullen one, reached out and seized one of her clumsy hands in a firm grip.

"Ahem! Now, my dear—" he began, Kath's heavy-lidded eyes, widened to their fullest and traveled past his shoulder to the other woman who was slowly rising from her seat. Then Rand also turned and looked. Releasing the hand he held he rose to his feet, turned his back to Kath and faced the tall, slender one with a copious wink. In true "movie" fashion he registered his confession and guilt.

"Ah—er—how do you do? Had no idea—"

Then he turned: "Ah—some other time, Miss Berry—" But Kath's chair was empty. On the street door Kath and Lillian waited. They pounced upon Kath as she emerged from the elevator.

"Tell us—what did he want to see you about?"

"Girls—the shaken one was no longer clary of speech—"take it from me that him's a wolf clear through—If his wife hadn't happened in—"

Up in the office a pair of young people had fallen into swivel chairs, weak from laughter.

"A 'pearl'—an 'Adonis' is one thing, Cousin Sue; but a 'sheep' is a bird of another complexion. That girl doesn't talk much, which makes her a sort of oracle around the office. I may have to spend the rest of my life here and I'm not going to begin as a sheep—in wolf's clothing—so I staged the little affair on the spur of the moment, knowing you would be along to help me out. Tomorrow, I'll be in out-and-out wolf."

The mild Sylvester threw out his chest, flung on the rascally coat and pretended to leap savagely at his cousin.

They went out to dinner together. Sue and this boy-man-wolf cousin of hers. In the soft glow of the table lamp her eyes were very gentle, warm and maternal as she studied him. Tomorrow he would be scorned unmercifully by the employees of the company. But that was as nothing to being thought a sheep—men were like that.

He looked up then and held her blushing gaze with masterful eyes.

"This time, Sue, you're going to accept me—"

Anyhow, that's how modest Sylvester, now vice-president of the company, became a wolf—in State street.

WOLF'S CLOTHING

By VERA T. ROGERS.

1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

They were discussing the new office manager—that is, Rida and Lillian were. Kath was the listening portion of the trio. She sat in the bright sunlight streaming through the broad window, without a blink of her heavily-lidded sepia-brown eyes. Her dimpled fingers played a lazy tattoo on the typewriter before her. Once she turned her head, like a languid sunflower, toward the twittering pair, and that was all.

The new man had disappeared for a few moments. In the meantime he was "catching it" from the office.

"What do you think of him, Kath?"

"Stuffy little gothic-brown mustache, eh, Kath?"

"Let Kath alone. Can't you see she's asleep—like a sweet Persian tulip in the sun?"

"A peach! An Adonis, isn't he, Kath?"

"Adonish? You've said it!" shouted "Sour Grapes" from his high stool.

"Didn't you just love the way he romped in with his raccoon coat and motor goggles?" gurgled Lillian.

Kath spoke for the first time that day: "Wolf's clothing!" Her tapping preserved its steady, lazy rhythm.

"Wolf! Wolf!" Another "high stool" took up the cry.

"That's not a wolf—it's a hen!"

"He's a hen—he's a hen," duced Rida toward the water tank.

"What did you mean by 'wolf's clothing,' Kath?"

"She meant a sheep in wolf's clothing. He's a sheep—he's a sheep!"

"Sour Grapes," saying Kath an answer.

Every high stool and swivel creaked under its weight of assiduous attention to business when Authority returned. The detail ran smoothly, for the force, in spite of spirits' overhills, was a competent one. Sylvester Rand made vigorous use of his handkerchief when he entered. His keen gray eyes were dancing as they sought the floor. As a matter of fact he had heard every word—learned in the space of three minutes that he grew on trees, was a Greek god and was that most pitiful of objects—a sheep in wolf's clothing. He stepped to Kath's desk.

"Miss Berry, will you remain after 5 this evening. I want to discuss something." And the office listened to a man. Kath raised inquiring eyes, which had grown a little wider, and nodded.

At 5:15 the company's outer office door opened and a tall, slender brunette, enveloped in furs, entered. Her deep blue eyes, in contrast to her dark hair, were alive and searching. Her glance fell upon the waiting Kath, who, dressed for the street, was seated before her covered up typewriter.

"Is Mr. Rand here?" asked the brunette sweetly.

The disgruntled one moved a languid hand toward the inner office, the door of which was slightly ajar.

SMART CHILDREN

By MARY LOUISE CORMIER.

1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I say, pater, can you let me have $50 on account?" There was the usual solicitous expression on William Sylvester's young face as he made his familiar request. Old John Pennynickle dropped his copy of the Evening Gazette and his mild gray eyes looked out troublously at the boy from behind a barricade of shabby, misshapen spectacles.

"You haven't spent all of your allowance this early, Will?" he demanded. "Why, when I was your age an allowance like that would keep me in fun for a year."

"But, pater, this is the Twentieth century!" William Sylvester's stock was delivered with the open exasperation of seventeen. "Besides, in a one-horse town like Meeds, $50 a month is barely enough to get by on—and keep up appearances, I mean!"

The boy in concluding shot an appealing sidelong glance at his mother. And that lady, whose ruling ambition was to see her children firmly and safely established "in the right class," rallied to his defense.

"Sylvester is right," she declared in the judicial tone of one used to handing down final decisions; "it is only reasonable to expect that the son of one of Meeds' leading citizens should keep up a decent front."

"I was thinking of the store," said "pater," offering a feeble defense. "I've had to sell that last lot of hardware at a loss. Business is pretty dull just now, you know."

"Business again!" Mrs. John Pennynickle's crisp voice pounced upon the word scornfully. "Do you consider business more important than your children's future? I must say, John Pennynickle—"

"Oh, all right, mother, all right," capitulated the old man listlessly. Anything, he told himself, to escape another of Carrie's tongue-lashings. "You come around to the store in the morning, Will, and I'll fix you up."

"Thanks, pater," William Sylvester flashed a look of triumph in his mother's direction. Then he turned back to his father with an apologetic grin.

"I wouldn't have asked you for this," he explained, "if it wasn't for the fact that Norry and Christine are coming home next week. They'll probably bring along some of their swell friends and—well, you know what that means, pater."

"Yes," Pater knew what it meant, well enough. Money! Each time the children came home from college he made feverish trips to the bank. He would do so again.

Norris was the first to tap the parental resources. He and a college chum were planning to establish a summer restaurant.

"Mints of money in it, pater," he confided earnestly. "All I need to start in with is about $500. You could let me have that much, couldn't you? Pater let him have it. No sooner was this affair concluded than Christine revealed her plan for an elaborate black and white frock."

"Just a little welcome home party," she told her father sweetly. "Please do this for me, pater, darling! And of course 'pater darling' did."

Christine's little party was a picturesque affair that cost several hundred dollars. Meeds flocked to it and enjoyed itself hugely.

The day after the black and white frock pater was knocked down by an automobile on South Main street. His family was deeply shocked.

"But I didn't suppose anything could ever happen to pater!" Christine moaned to Doctor Stanton when they went to visit Pennynickle in the Hill-side hospital.

"Oh, yes," he responded with thinly veiled sarcasm. "You know even the best machine made is subject to wear and tear. In pater's ward the children dined languidly and blundered themselves mercilessly for the entirety. Once outside—they blundered each other. Only Carrie seemed genuinely affected by the accident."

"I'm ashamed of myself, John," she whispered to the bantled figure on the hospital cot. "We've all been driving you like an old workhorse."

Pater reached up and patted her hand.

"It's all right, mother," he mumbled weakly. "We—we had to think of the children's future, you know. Don't worry. I'll be out of here in a week." But he was wrong. It was a whole month before he was able to leave the hospital. At home he found two letters awaiting him.

One, containing a bill, was from Christine, who was in the White Mountains, "re recuperating from a nervous breakdown." The other was from Norris.

"The restaurant is coming along slowly," he wrote. "Do you think you could wire an additional $200—just to see the thing through?" Pater showed the two letters to Doctor Stanton, who had accompanied him.

"Well," commented the cynical doctor, "I guess they'll never learn. They should be ashamed of themselves."

"What for?" Pater's head shot up aggressively. A tender light flooded his gray eyes. "Christine was elected president of her class at Wellesley last term. Will made the high school eleven, too. And Norris—what a head for business that boy has! Ashamed? Not a bit of it! If I do say it myself, they're a right smart set of children!"

FELT LIKE AN IRON BAND AROUND HEAD

This Is How Lynchburg, Va., Woman Declares Her Headaches Often Affected Her.

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss N. E. Woodford, 1808 Filmore St., Lynchburg, Va., who says:

"I don't believe anybody ever suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite either."

"I owe Tanlac an everlasting debt of gratitude for entirely ridding me of those terrible headaches. My stomach has been toned up too, and everything I eat agrees with me now. Tanlac certainly brought me health and happiness."

Tanlac is sold in Hartford by Dr. L. B. Bean and by all leading druggists everywhere.

"Does it not throw a shade of bitterness into your heart," she said, "to see the trees all leafless, and to hear the wind sighing forever in mournful monotony? Does it not make you feel that there is too much that is bleak in the world?"

"No," he answered, "it really does not."

"Why?"

"Because my papa is in the coal business."

Mrs. Blunder has just received a telegram from India. "What an admirable invention the telegram is!" she exclaimed, "when you come to consider that this message has come a distance of thousands of miles, and the gum on the envelope isn't dry yet."

She—Most people admire my mouth. Do you?

He (absent-mindedly)—I think it is simply immense!

Mrs. Worth had just learned that her colored workwoman, Aunt Dinah, had at the age of 70 married for the fourth time. "Why," Aunt Dinah, she exclaimed, "you surely haven't married again!"

"Yassum, honey, I has," was Aunt Dinah's smiling reply. "Jes' as often as de Lawd takes 'em, so will I."

The head of one of the government scientific bureaus at Washington felt somewhat flattered at receiving one day a letter from a gentleman in the West, asking him to send a copy of his report. The scientist replied promptly, asking to which particular report his correspondent referred.

The answer came: "Am not particular which one you send. I want it for a scrapbook."—Country Gentleman.

"True, but we can't all afford to keep a cook."—Toledo Blade.

"If I take the place, mister, kin I eat with the family?"

"Eat with the family?" exclaimed Mr. Suburban. "My good woman, we'll give a dinner in your honor every week."

Rich Uncle—The simplest joys are the best. The pleasantest way to spend a Saturday night is sitting in a bath-tub with the water up to your chin, thinking about the money you have in the bank.

Poor Nipper—Well, I have got the bathtub, the chin, and the water, so all I lack is the money.

"I believe," said the cheery philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."

"That's my experience," agreed Phumbley. "Last March I gave away my daughter, and she and her husband came back in August."

"That long-haired, round-shouldered fellow going by on the other side of the street has a collection of 8927 different specimens of moths and butterflies, and is adding to it right along," proudly said the landlord of the Petunia tavern.

QUEEN'S DEGREE BASIS FOR SUIT

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 24.—A dark room filled with strange people, a white-clothed altar, on which grotesquely and weirdly glistened a mystic sword, a woman stooping to kiss the altar cloth, a smack, an explosion, the smell of burning cloth and a shriek in the night.

All this proved to be material for a $20,000 suit filed against the Modern Order of Praetorians by Mrs. Mexia Osborn, 20, and pretty who alleges she sustained permanent injuries from what would have been a perfectly good initiation had not the "slapperitis," a paddle-like instrument, been applied the wrong way.

Exploded Wrong Way.

But it was applied the wrong way Mrs. Osborn alleges, and, being thus applied, a blank cartridge was exploded into the person of the young woman, who sustained powder burns, spine affection and shock to say nothing of a ruined dress and a certain amount of humiliation.

The secret workings of the Modern Praetorians will soon be revealed in court, and the damaging "slapperitis" will be brought into plain view for the eyes of all.

The papers in the suit allege that the "slapperitis" is an instrument used in the initiation which Mrs. Osborn was taking on the night of September 9, known as the "Queen's degree," and that it is a paddle-like weapon heavily padded on one side, which is supposed to be the side applied to the person when the "Queen" leans over to kiss the altar or the sword, and the other side is arranged with a bond fitted to hinges and containing a blank cartridge, which explodes when the "Queen" is smacked, but, of course, the other way.

The suit alleges that the person whose office is to apply the "slapperitis," which weighs four pounds, negligently applied the wrong side to Mrs. Osborn, with the result that the cartridge exploded into Mrs. Osborn. It is alleged that her clothing caught fire from the explosion, injuring her person, damaging her dress and causing her much humiliation.

The Praetorians have alighted their intention of fighting the suit and have employed attorneys for that purpose. They declare that Mrs. Osborn showed no effect of injuries at the time and that she danced until a late hour that night and walked to her home, nearly a mile away from the hall.

WENT ON HONEYMOON—

TOOK HIS WIFE WITH HIM

A writer to a London daily paper, joining in the widespread chorus of public complaints against the inefficiency of the government telephone service, relates the following per from his honeymoon he was greatly astonished to receive a statement from the Post Office requiring payment for calls made from his telephone during his absence. He declared that the house had been closed and even confided why he had been away, whereupon the official after due deliberation, suggested:

"Could it not be your wife who had been using the phone in your absence?" It was only after the writer had carefully explained that he had taken the precaution to have his wife with him on his honeymoon that the calls were finally canceled.

"OLD" PEACOCK HOME GLORY HAS VANISHED

Famous Pittsburg Mansion, Once
Showplace May Be Sold

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 24.—The Peacock mansion—the most elaborate show-place castle ever built by a Pittsburgh millionaire—is dragging its feathers in the dust. Abandoned by its family, which has gone to New York, and devalued of its strange and splendid collection of furniture, tapestries and art objects, speculation is rife here as to what will become of the house that was built to outlive all other millionaires' homes by the man who got into the good graces of Andrew Carnegie in his day by selling him historic plaids.

It was when Alexander R. Peacock cashed his Carnegie steel stock, which the canny ironmaster—in generous mood—had bestowed upon him, Corey and Schwab, prior to the formation of the United States Steel Corporation, that Peacock found himself with $20,000,000.

Peacock Sets Record.

The accepted manner in these days for a new Pittsburgh millionaire—there were some forty of them—to show his standing in the community was by building a house. Peacock outdid custom. He set a house-mansion-castle building record. He bought a couple of city blocks and upon one of them proceeded to erect a house that had all the vagaries of architecture from the classical Doric to the Queen Anne and comprised all building materials from Carrara marble to American brick.

Pittsburg marveled. A hundred horses were kept. Everything was conducted on an elaborate scale.

Peacock, the man who in selling historic Scotch plaids to Carnegie, made such an impression that Carnegie put him to work selling steel, did not lack for ideas. He adopted the peacock—one going forth grandly, with a strutting tail—on a field vert as his coat-of-arms. The Pittsburgh-made cat-of-arms stares forth from every part of the house. It is set in mosaic, carved on the furniture that but recently was auctioned off, painted in windows and set off in halustrades.

The mansion is now for sale. It is said a price of less than a fifth of its original cost would take the outfit—peacocks and all. A public auction herefit the house of most of its furnishings. And most of the trinkets—costly of their original owner—went for a song.

One local report says the mansion may be converted into an apartment house.

At any rate—gone is the glory of the Peacock palace, the pride of Pittsburg during her pristine growth of millionaires!

FINGERPRINTS TO TRAP BOOTLEGGERS

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 24.—It is just one thing after another for the bootleggers. It seems that those of Huntington and its vicinity will have to put in stocks of gloves and wear them at all stages of the game as the result of the activity of M. R. Rose, Bertillon, inspector of the local police department, who is meeting with great success in running down criminals thru a fingerprint system. The system has proved so successful that it is to be used in running down the bootleggers as well. A tell-tale print left on a bottle of booze may now lead the owner at the print into the hands of the law. A fond clasp on a quart of real red liquor or still moonshine will now constitute a leap in the dark toward a prison cell. It's a hard life and getting worse.

The SANDMAN STORY

POLLY'S ADVENTURE

MISS POLLY PARROT listened as she swung in her cage, for Mr. Dog and Mistress Puss were telling of their adventures. Mr. Dog told about being chased by a big bear when he was out hunting once with his master, "but in the end," said he, "we captured that bear and the big rug in the hall was made from its skin."

"I guess you were pretty scared that time," giggled Mistress Puss. "Why did you go hunting bears, anyway? You are too small for that, I would say."

"We didn't go after a bear," said Mr. Dog. "We were hunting another game and the bear must have been lost, or he would not have wandered so far from his home."

"He was pretty hungry, Master said, and I think he was, too, by the way he chased me, but I guess he was pretty sorry when he found my Master had a gun."

"Well, that is some adventure, to be sure," said Puss, "but if you ever caught your foot in a trap you would think that was far worse than being chased by a bear."

"Once when I was chasing a mouse I stepped on a trap and I nearly lost my foot and I was so lame for a long time I could not run at all."

"You lost the mouse, too, I suppose," said Mr. Dog, with a laugh.

"Oh, I did not care anything about that," said Puss with a twitch of her tail. "There are plenty more mice, but if I had lost that foot where could I have found another, I should like to know?"

"You and I have had some very exciting adventures," said Mr. Dog, "and how anyone can live shut up in a cage as Polly does, I am sure I cannot understand. She never had an adventure in her whole life, poor thing."

"How-wow," said Polly so plainly that Mr. Dog dropped his tail and walked out of the room, for more than once Polly had fooled him and made him think there was another dog around the house.

Mistress Puss began to laugh, but Polly called, "Come puss, puss," and off ran Puss, for she, too, had been fooled many times by thinking her mistress was calling her to eat her dinner when it was Polly just fooling her.

But the love for adventure was planted in Polly's mind and the next day when the cage door was opened and she was allowed to flit about the room, her keen eyes looked about for an open window. She did not see one in that room, but when some one opened the door, Polly, who was perched just over it, quick as a flash slipped out before she was noticed and then out she flew through the open window in the next room.

Up to the top of a tree flew Polly, while everybody called and coaxed her to fly into her cage, which was hung on the tree.

Mr. Dog barked and Mistress Puss sat on the ground looking with envious eyes at Polly as she mimicked them both and then laughed loudly. When some one at last climbed the tree Polly flew away to the very top of a tall telegraph pole and laughed as though she enjoyed the joke she had played.

By and by, with the help of a fireman and his ladder, Polly let herself be captured and put in her cage, but after that when Mr. Dog and Mistress Puss were talking of adventures Polly did not sit quietly and listen.

"Ha, ha, ha," she would laugh, "it took the fire department to rescue me. Talk of adventures, you two do not know a thing about that word. When I had one I made every one talk about it. How-wow! Me-ow, come puss, puss."

But Mr. Dog and Puss did not stop longer to hear what Polly had to say. "I never did care for that bird," said Mr. Dog.

"Nor I," said Puss. "I am sure she would be tough eating."

"Oh, I don't mean in that way," said Mr. Dog.

"I am sure I do not know what you mean, then," said Puss. "There is only one way to care for a bird," and before Mr. Dog could explain, Puss ran for her saucer of milk she saw under the table.

"That is Some Adventure," Said Puss.

TREBLED FLEET IS DEMAND OF FRANCE

Delegates Lose Hope In Limit On Diving Craft Forces.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Efforts to limit the naval strength of the powers in submarines and auxiliary warships came to an abrupt end today after they had drawn the French and British arms conference delegates into a plain-spoken exchange over the possibilities of a future war between France and the British empire.

The French, acting under renewed instructions from their government, told the conference naval committee with an air of finality that France must remain free to build a submarine fleet nearly three times as great as that she now possesses and to construct, in addition, cruisers, destroyers and other auxiliary craft up to a tonnage of 330,000.

To the proposal the Americans, Japanese and Italians replied with expressions of surprise and regret, while the British charged openly that such a building program must be regarded as a menace to British shores. Arthur J. Balfour added that he had no doubt, if occasion arose, Great Britain would be equal to it, but only if she reserved complete freedom of action as to the construction of all types of auxiliaries which might be useful against underwater warfare.

Suggests Submarine Rules

Agreeing that further argument would be useless, the committee turned its attention to collateral subjects, including regulations for future use of submarines, proposals for limitation of the size and armament of individual auxiliary vessels, and details of the agreement already sealed in principle regarding capital ships.

For the American delegation, Elihu Root proposed a joint declaration reaffirming the obligation of submarine commanders to warn merchant ships before attack, to refrain from sinking vessels, whose crews and passengers could not first be placed in safety and to conform in general to all the established practices of international law. In addition, Mr. Root also suggested a change in existing usage to prohibit attacks on merchant vessels altogether and to make submarine commanders who violate the regulation liable to trial as pirates.

Guns Limited To Sixteen Inches.

General sympathy for the purposes of these proposals was expressed by the representatives of all the powers but definite action was deferred. Should an agreement be reached it is to be submitted to all civilized nations with an invitation for worldwide adherence.

Under a further proposal presented by the American delegation and given general but not final approval by the other plenipotentiaries, no auxiliary vessel of more than 10,000 tons could be constructed by any of the powers, and no airplane carrier could have a tonnage of more than 27,000 tons. A maximum airplane carrier tonnage of 80,000 for the United States, 80,000 for Great Britain, 48,000 for Japan, 28,000 for France and 28,000 for Italy also was suggested by the Americans and will be further discussed tomorrow. The net result of the day's deliberations, so far as actual progress is concerned, was an agreement that in future no gun of more than sixteen-inch caliber shall be mounted on a capital ship and none of more than eight-inch caliber shall be included in the armament of any auxiliary vessel or airplane carrier.

French Want to Build In 1927.

Along with their demand for increased submarine and auxiliary tonnage the French delegation presented to the committee in definite form, but with a reservation attached their acceptance of the capital ship ratio under which France is to have a first-line battleship fleet of 175,000 tons. The reservation provides that the French be permitted to break in on the ten-year naval holiday so as to begin construction of replacement tonnage in 1927, four years before the holiday ends.

In most quarters this exception was not regarded as likely to endanger in any way the capital ship agreement, but it was characterized by Mr. Balfour in the committee session as a serious interference with the holiday plan. The proposal is under consideration by the naval experts of the other powers and an effort to reach a decision regarding it probably will be made in the near future.

Albert Sarraut, head of the French delegation, presented the submarine and auxiliary estimates of his government to the committee in a speech, declaring that the figures suggested were a minimum required for national defense. He emphasized that highest French naval authorities, as well as the French cabinet, had made a definite decision on the point and indicated that further attempts to secure recession would be futile.

Under these estimates France would have a submarine tonnage of 90,000 as against 31,000 which she now possesses and which it was proposed that she retain unchanged under the status quo plan of the American compromise. The United States has only 95,000 tons and Great Britain 82,000 tons, and each had offered under the compromise proposals to reduce to 60,000.

Disappointed With France.

All the powers expressed their disappointment over the French decision, even the Japanese, who had themselves declined to accept the compromise plan, declaring they had hoped until today that an agreement could be worked out along the lines of the earlier American reduction plan. The most extended reply to Mr. Sarraut, however, was delivered by Mr. Balfour.

France, declared Mr. Balfour, already had insisted on retreating the largest army in the world and had been allotted a capital ship strength which, instead of reducing her present standing as a naval power, actually elevated it. In these circumstances, he continued, it was difficult to believe that the proposed increase in submarine and auxiliary tonnage was designed as a defensive move. He charged that the purpose of so large a submarine fleet was to make an illegitimate attack on merchant shipping in war-time and added that the whole proposition must be viewed with "anxiety and disappointment," when it was seen that the new building program was to be carried out at the very door of Great Britain.

In a speech replying in turn to the British statesman, Mr. Sarraut declared the French government was free from any militaristic desires and had no desire to carry on illegitimate warfare. The French, he said, were merely presenting a program based on their national needs, whereas the other powers had sought to "authoritatively determine" an allotment for her without consulting her just requirements.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS CONFER ALL DEGREES

Keystone Chapter, No. 110, R. A. M., by previous order of adjournment, met Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in a session, except for one hour taken for supper, which was prolonged to 10:30. Candidates were present for all of the degrees conferred in capitol masonry and a double class for the Royal Arch degree.

Previous arrangements had been made for the reception of a class from Fordsville, but unexpected and last minute conditions made it impossible for the Fordsville Companions to be present with their vic-tims.

No more enjoyable convocation of the local chapter was perhaps ever held. Fruits and cigars were relished after final adjournment.

THE RIGHT THING at the RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

LUNCHEON FOR TWO

A dinner lubricates business.—Lord Stowell.

A YOUNG woman in business asks to know whether it is ever in good form for a young woman to take luncheon alone in a restaurant with a man with whom she is associated in business. To be sure there are times when it would be distinctly unwise for her to do so, and other times when it would not only be in perfectly good form but almost necessary to the smooth running of her business relations. For more and more men and women in business meet on a basis of good fellowship and with none of the consciousness of sex that characterized the treatment of young women in business some fifty years ago.

Though the over prudish one might say that an unmarried woman ought never to take a meal alone in a public place with a man to whom she was not closely acquainted without a chaperone, no sane person can feel that this applies to the woman who is earning her living. Imagine asking the business associate to permit you to go for your married aunt or mother when obviously the object in landing with you was to save time by talking business at the same time that you have luncheon and to better understand each other's business methods under the favorable influence of some hotel's good cookery.

In general, having luncheon with a business associate is something that almost every business girl of any experience would at times consent to do, while having dinner is quite another matter. The young business woman can always excuse herself on the ground that she does not wish to remain away from home at dinner time or that she never lets business concerns intrude on the evening hours, but she has no excuse for luncheon and, in truth, no one misjudges a woman nowadays who goes to lunch alone with the men she knows in business.

If you ask a young woman to have luncheon with you, always defer to her in the matter of choosing the place. If you know of some interesting place you may make the invitation to go to that place. If it is not mentioned in the invitation, then the young man should always ask the woman whether there is some place that she would prefer. If she mentions none and has no preferences, then he might suggest a couple of places where he knows the cooking is good. The gracious young woman will always decide on one of these unless she has some reasonable objection to them. If no suggestion is made, then she should not suggest the most expensive hotel in town.

When a young man has taken a young woman to luncheon with him he should always remember that it is up to him to thank her for having given him her society for the time. A young woman should hardly thank her escort, but should assure the man that she has had an enjoyable time and convey by her manner the feeling that she is enjoying the "treat."
